

Quito, Ecuador

Julie Wolfe

ANCHOR: (Speaking Spanish)

VOICEOVER: (Speaking Spanish)

WOLFE: I decided it would be interesting to do my metal work as far as showing other people how to do it in some region where they don't do metal work yet or they don't have access to it.

VOICEOVER: (Speaking Spanish)

VILLEGAS: (Speaking Spanish)

VOICEOVER: (Speaking Spanish)

WOLFE: My purpose, well the purpose of the whole thing was to learn from them and for them to learn from me. And then plant the seed for both countries to continue on these techniques and collaboration. So that was my expectation, that was my goal.

VOICEOVER: (Speaking Spanish)

BUHELL: (Speaking Spanish)

VOICEOVER: (Speaking Spanish)

WOLFE: It's beautiful and one thing I noticed in the beginning on the first day was the variety of styles that each person worked in that was there were no two styles alike. Each one had their own design technique and materials they worked with, everything was different so it was fun to see the ideas that they came up with as it progressed.

VOICEOVER: (Speaking Spanish)

VILLEGAS: (Speaking Spanish)

VOICEOVER: (Speaking Spanish)

WATATOCA: (Speaking Spanish)

VOICEOVER: (Speaking Spanish)